Buenos Aires, Argentina

Organized by TAFISA and AMUDERA

Under ICSSPE Patronage and in Conjunction with WHO "Move for Health"

Invitation:

We invite you to the 20th TAFISA World Congress on Sport for All: Meeting the Challenges of Building Social Capital, to be held in Buenos Aires, Argentina from 25 to 30 September.

Theme of the World Congress:

Sport for All has long been a decisive force in improving society life and greatly enhances the individual's social and physical capital. However, formidable challenges remain, such as the ever-longer hours required at the workplace, the integration of culturally, racially and religiously diverse individuals and families into community life and the inspiration and mobilization of people not yet connected to sport to take part to create strong communities and social works.

An investment in Sport for All results in the strengthening of the social fabric that leads to better quality life, improved health and well-being, all of which are themes of World Health Organization's "Move for Health" Initiative.

This Congress will address the challenges facing Sport for All in four key areas:

- Family sport
- Club sport
- Workplace sport
- Community/city sport

As such it will address the following issues:

- Demographic change and the challenge of cities and communities
- The social, cultural and health challenges of contemporary society facing Sport for All
- The necessary infrastructure, programs, leadership programs and policies necessary to build better community life
- International coordinated efforts necessary to promote active city, workplaces, clubs and family strategies.
- Time devoted for conference participants to share challenges and concerns, and dynamic strategic planning and problem-solving

The Congress is hosted in one of the most beautiful cities of the world – Buenos Aires. A place where tango, good food, shopping at a low price, cultural life, football and night life converge.
