The seminar aspires to help young women and men gain valuable skills and tools that will enable them to become potential leaders in international sport organisations, sport institutions and sport science. The focus of the seminar is on communication, an essential skill for success. Communication skills training, communication and the media, and international communication, are some of the major topics that will be covered. There will be a number of experienced and inspiring speakers presenting these topics, as well as activities that will put communication skills training to practice.

'Paths to Success' is a seminar designed for young women and men interested in future work for international sport organisations and improving leadership abilities.
